

PATIENT POLLS

Clinical Trials for Migraine

Migraine Meanderings hosted a poll that asked “Would you consider participating in a clinical trial for migraine?” Respondents were able to select as many answers as applied.

CLINICAL TRIALS FOR MIGRAINE

“As someone who has worked in cancer research for 20 years and a migraine patient; I would most certainly participate in a trial. Every single drug and device exists because people were willing to take a risk for the greater benefit of science.”

—Poll Respondent

749 participants voted in this online poll. 650 of the votes cast were in favor of participating in at least some form of clinical trial for migraine.

HIGHLIGHTS

The top three answers in this poll show that many respondents would participate in a clinical trial.

1. Medication trial
2. External device trial
3. Implanted device trial

The results of this poll indicate that patients value the need for new treatments for migraine and are willing to be part of advancing research and science to make those treatments available.
